Erin:

It will be a Corps product. We intend to address how we may/may not use the EIS to make decisions on 404/10 and 408.

Hi Michael,
Thanks for the message and update about the white paper. Would you be willing to share a draft of the white paper with us before it goes to the larger group? I think it is smart to be sure that our agencies are consistent with respect to NEPA and CWA before it goes out to the other federal agencies. Hopefully we'll all be on the same page and it will be a short review/turn around back to you. If we are not on the same page, then it is a good time to figure out our differences and resolve them.

Who will be producing the first draft? Will it be a Corps product or created in collaboration with DWR?

I wanted to apologize to all for not making the call. I had to take care of some personal stuff yesterday afternoon. Mike N and I caught up a little this morning. I can tell you we are considering putting a whitepaper together detailing how we intend to use the document, with the appropriate caveats of course.

Based on the response below, let's schedule a call for no more than 30 minutes for 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday. I think we will have a critical mass of participants. Please include anyone not on this email who would benefit from being on the call.

I'm out Friday and Monday, and Michael Jewell is at a mitigation banking conference today and tomorrow. 2pm on Tuesday would work for both of us.

I think it would be very helpful if we can have a call soon to make sure we all have a common understanding about the scope of the BDCP EIS in relation to the Corps permitting process (section 404 and/or section 408). As you are probably aware from recent newspaper articles, a lot of attention is being paid to the BDCP schedule. I would like to make sure I understand everything and that we are all on the same page.

Would 2:00 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) work for enough of us to make the call doable?
